ABOUT US

At LAWVS, we are driven by the conviction that legal education must go beyond the confines of textbooks and classrooms. We recognize that true learning takes form in spaces where theory is tested through practice, where advocacy is sharpened through exposure, and where confidence is cultivated in a courtroom-like setting.

This competition was conceived with the intent to democratize access to such a space one that mirrors the rigour, decorum, and dynamism of real-world legal proceedings. Over the years, we observed a persistent gap: many aspiring law students across the country lack institutional support or opportunities to engage in meaningful courtroom simulation experiences. For others, the barriers come in the form of steep entry costs, rigid selection processes, or geographic limitations.

LAWVS seeks to remove those obstacles. This initiative is a deliberate and thoughtful response to the evolving needs of legal education in India. Our aim is to offer a structured, intellectually demanding, and professionally enriching platform where students irrespective of their institutional background or prior experience can participate, present, and progress.

In keeping with our founding principle of accessibility, the format remains entirely online. This allows students from every part of the country, regardless of infrastructure or institutional support, to participate without logistical hurdles.

It is an open call to those with the passion to learn, the courage to argue, and the discipline to grow.

At LAWVS, we are not just building an event we are building a culture. One where advocacy is not a privilege, but a practice open to all who are willing to prepare for it.

We invite you to be part of this experience not just to participate, but to evolve.

As advocates.

As professionals.

As future custodians of justice

WARM REGARDS

TEAM LAWVS

MOOT COURT PROPOSITION

PARTIES INVOLVED

1. Govind Das is a long-time resident of Vrindavan, Uttar Pradesh, and a practicing sevadar affiliated with various local spiritual and environmental initiatives. He represents the interests of displaced residents, small-scale shopkeepers, and heritage conservationists who are affected by the proposed Banke Bihari Temple Corridor Project. Concerned by the increasing commercialization and infrastructural changes threatening the town's spiritual atmosphere and fragile river ecosystem, Govind Das has actively opposed unchecked development around Vrindavan's sacred precincts. He claims to represent the voices of local families facing eviction, as well as small business owners whose livelihoods depend on the centuries-old pilgrimage economy in the congested temple lanes. Environmental experts working with him have expressed strong concerns regarding the potential ecological impact of the project, especially on the Yamuna River, which flows barely a few hundred meters from the temple. He argues that infrastructural modernization cannot override the fundamental right to a clean environment, nor justify the cultural erasure of Vrindavan's unique spiritual landscape. Herein, Govind Das, on behalf of hundreds of similarly affected residents, shopkeepers, environmental activists, and heritage conservationists, humbly approaches this Hon'ble Court under Article 32 of the Constitution of India, seeking redress for the collective infringement of their fundamental rights under Articles 14 and 21, as well as violations of statutory environmental and heritage protection laws.

2. The State of Uttar Pradesh, acting through its Department of Tourism, Department of Urban Development, and Department of Religious Affairs, is the primary Respondent in this matter. In response to the tragic stampede at the Banke Bihari Ji Temple on 19th August 2022, the State Government developed and proposed the Banke Bihari Temple Corridor Project, modelled after similar successful religious infrastructure projects like the Kashi Vishwanath Corridor in Varanasi. The State contends that the current infrastructure around the temple is dangerously inadequate to manage the daily and festival crowds, posing grave risks to public safety. It argues that the corridor will create streamlined access, controlled entry and exit points, medical and security facilities, and cleaner surroundings for both devotees and residents. The State further submits that heritage preservation and religious tourism are not mutually exclusive, and claims that modern design can respect and reflect cultural aesthetics while ensuring safety and functionality. Citing the already incurred expenditure of over 300 crore on land acquisition, relocation plans, and architectural surveys, the State argues that halting the project at this stage would result in significant loss to the public exchequer, delay safety upgrades, and discourage future faith-based development efforts.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. The Banke Bihari Ji Temple, located in Vrindavan, Uttar Pradesh, is one of the most important Krishna temples in India and a major site of pilgrimage under the Pushti Marg tradition. The temple is dedicated to Thakur Shri Banke Bihari Ji, a form of Lord Krishna, and is considered sacred by millions of devotees. The spiritual significance of Vrindavan as the land of Krishna's divine Leelas (pastimes) makes this temple not only a religious monument but also a cultural symbol of immense value. The temple draws over 50 lakh pilgrims annually, with the number swelling dramatically during religious festivals such as Janmashtami, Holi, and Kartik Purnima.

2. The temple is situated in an old and organically developed heritage precinct, characterized by narrow lanes, traditional residential structures, century-old religious institutions, and small-scale commercial establishments. These architectural features, while emblematic of Vrindavan's historical charm, have become obstacles to crowd management and emergency response during large gatherings. Despite multiple studies and administrative observations noting the area's vulnerability to congestion, comprehensive infrastructural changes had not been implemented prior to 2022.

3. On 19th August 2022, during the celebration of Janmashtami, a tragic stampede occurred during the early morning Mangala Aarti, one of the most sacred and crowded rituals at the temple. Thousands of devotees surged towards the sanctum, leading to a crush inside the temple premises. The incident resulted in the deaths of two devotees and caused injuries to at least 25 others, some of whom required critical care. Initial reports attributed the tragedy to a combination of factors including overcrowding, lack of regulated entry/exit points, insufficient personnel for crowd control, and the physical constraints posed by the surrounding infrastructure.

4. In the aftermath, several civil society groups, devotees, and concerned citizens approached the Allahabad High Court through Public Interest Litigations (PILs) under Article 226 of the Constitution, seeking urgent judicial intervention. The PILs prayed for the development of a comprehensive crowd management system, emergency medical infrastructure, widening of access roads, and creation of safe entry and exit channels for large numbers of pilgrims.

5. The State of Uttar Pradesh, in its submissions before the High Court, acknowledged that minor regulatory changes would not suffice to address the fundamental risks posed by the area's structural limitations. The Government proposed a large-scale Banke Bihari Temple Corridor Project, modelled on similar religious infrastructure initiatives such as the Kashi Vishwanath Corridor. The plan involved the demolition of over 300 structures, acquisition of approximately 8 acres of land, and construction of dedicated corridors, emergency exits, pilgrim holding areas, public sanitation, and medical aid centres.

6. On 20th March 2023, the Allahabad High Court issued a judgment directing the State Government to initiate and execute the proposed corridor project. The Court emphasized that the protection of human life and public safety were paramount and that heritage conservation must evolve with the needs of the present. The judgment observed that the failure to act could result in further loss of life and held that courts are constitutionally empowered under Article 226 to issue such directives in public interest when State action is found to be insufficient or delayed.

7. Following the High Court's judgment, widespread opposition emerged from various stakeholders, including local residents, shopkeeper associations, environmentalists, and heritage conservationists. A coalition of these groups, led by Govind Das, filed a Special Leave Petition (SLP) before the Supreme Court of India, challenging the High Court's directions. He argued that the project would result in forced eviction of over 200 families, displacement of approximately 500 small businesses, and irreversible damage to the cultural fabric of Vrindavan. He further alleged that no proper public consultation had been conducted.

8. Environmental concerns were also raised in the petition. The Yamuna River, which flows within 300 to 500 meters of the temple site, was cited as being ecologically sensitive and vulnerable to increased human activity, construction debris, sewage discharge, and floodplain encroachment. Govind Das argued that the project, if implemented without an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) and requisite environmental clearance, would violate provisions of the Environment (Protection)

Act, 1986, and the Water (Prevention and Control of Pollution) Act, 1974.

9. He also contended that the area falls within a designated heritage zone under applicable heritage conservation laws. He alleged that construction activities would impact protected monuments, sacred alleys, and pilgrimage routes that are integral to Vrindavan's religious identity. In particular, he cited non-compliance with the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958, which requires prior approval from competent heritage authorities for construction within a certain radius of protected sites.

10. Govind Das further invoked Article 300A of the Constitution, which guarantees that no person shall be deprived of property except by authority of law. He claimed that many affected property holders were being denied fair compensation and rehabilitation, and were not provided a reasonable opportunity to be heard, as required under the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013. It was also alleged that several properties identified for demolition are owned under informal, customary, or disputed titles, raising serious legal questions about acquisition without adjudication of ownership.

11. The State Government, defending the corridor, submitted that the project was a critical public safety measure and that 300 crore had already been spent on land acquisition, architectural planning, and initial rehabilitation steps. It asserted that the plan integrates modern design with heritage elements, and delays would lead to greater public risk and financial waste.

12. In April 2024, Govind Das and other stakeholders filed a modification application, urging the Court to prevent even land acquisition until due process was followed, including public hearings, environmental clearance, and heritage approvals. He highlighted that allowing acquisition prior to such processes would amount to procedural overreach and irreversibly alter the physical and social fabric of the temple town.

13. Recognizing the complex interrelationship between the right to religion (Articles 25 & 26), right to life and environment (Article 21), protection of property (Article 300A), and the State's environmental and cultural duties (Articles 48A, 49 and 51A(g)), the Supreme Court referred the matter to a five-judge Constitutional Bench. A High-Powered Committee was also constituted to assess.

ISSUES FOR THE CONSIDERATION

1. Whether the High Court's mandamus under Article 226 directing a particular corridor scheme amounts to impermissible micro-management of executive policy, or is a constitutionally valid exercise to remedy systemic failure endangering life and safety.
2. Whether reconfiguration of temple approaches, alleys, and religious circulation routes implicates Article 25(freedom to practice) and Article 26 (management of religious affairs), and if so, the correct test to distinguish faithful facilitation from unconstitutional interference.
3. Whether the State's objectives of crowd management and public safety (Article 21) justify large-scale demolition and redesign of an organically evolved sacred precinct when less restrictive alternatives (staggered darshan, tech-enabled flow, festival-time regulation) may exist.
4. Whether the absence or inadequacy of meaningful public consultation (residents, shopkeepers, religious bodies, environmental experts) renders the decision-making process arbitrary under Article 14.
